After all the data collection and analyses you have conducted, you will eventually need to put everything together. ‘Finishing’ here refers to that phase when you have effectively done your research. This typically takes place in your final year.

During this period, you will be focusing on writing your thesis but also thinking about updating your CV. You may also begin job applications or consider what career path you wish to take. And once your thesis is submitted, you will need to focus on preparing for the viva voce.

We have workshops on offer that will help you at this stage.
