Lifelong Learning, Older People and Society

An opportunity to explore the benefits of learning activities for older people and wider society in different areas of public policy

Friday 6 May  Learning for the Fourth Age

Melissa March: Co-founder and Director of Learning for the Fourth Age (L4A)

The presentation will outline this innovative example of sustainable learning for some of the very oldest and most frail learners, reflecting on the lessons to be learned and plans for the future.

Friday 10 June  Intergenerational Learning: Europe and Beyond

Alan Hatton-Yeo: Chief Executive, Beth Johnson Foundation, and Director of the Centre for Intergenerational Practice

An exploration of the growing interest in intergenerational learning, looking at its potential to help with pressing social issues as we approach the European Year of Active Ageing and Intergenerational Solidarity in 2012.

Friday 24 June  Age UK’s Work and Lifelong Learning

Christopher Brooks: Policy Adviser - Employment and Skills, Age UK

How is Age UK’s campaigning work impacting on people in later life and what is Age UK’s involvement in lifelong learning, in light of the Government’s proposed reforms to the informal learning budget.

Each seminar costs £3.00 and will run from 11.00am-1.00pm on the Fourth Floor of the Charles Wilson Building, University of Leicester

Please contact Isobel to reserve a place: email – ijw3@le.ac.uk; telephone – 0116 2525914; Institute of Lifelong Learning, University of Leicester, 128 Regent Road, Leicester, LE1 7PA