

University of Leicester

Conflict Sensitivity for Heritage Professionals

Cultural heritage often plays a crucial role in conflict dynamics. Conflict sensitivity is therefore an essential skill for heritage professionals, yet it is often overlooked in standard training and development courses.

In partnership with International Alert, we provide training about the key aspects of conflict sensitivity for heritage professionals working in conflict-affected countries, delivered by our world-leading academics who are at the forefront of heritage research.

Our courses provide:

- A greater understanding of heritage and its socio-political significance
- In-depth learning about the concepts, principles and tools of conflict sensitivity
- Opportunities for participants to integrate their learning into their professional practice

International Alert.

www.le.ac.uk/chap

Learners will be equipped with the skills and confidence to engage with conflict actors, local communities, the international community and the wider public to make conflict sensitivity an integral part of heritage work.

Our interactive courses are tailored to the individual needs of our clients, from a half day training sessions through to multiple-days residential programmes. Teaching is delivered through workshops, case studies, role play, object handling and site visits.

How long is the course?

Half a day to multiple days, depending on clients' requirements.

How is it studied?

Interactive, face-to-face learning in a location convenient for participants.

Is it assessed?

Learners will receive a certificate of attendance.

Want to find out more?

Contact Dr Naoise MacSweeney on nm251@le.ac.uk or Dr Jasper Chalcraft on jc526@le.ac.uk.

Our interactive courses are tailored to the individual needs of our clients, from a half day training sessions through to multiple-days residential programmes.