

Calling local creative businesses: Can you spare a couple of hours to help inspire the next generation? Do you have vacancies to recruit to? Can you offer support for new start-ups?

On Wednesday 27th March, 3-9pm, we're hosting our first creative careers fair, targeting the University of Leicester's final year students, offering them an insight into alternative career options in the creative sector. We're looking for employers and organisations who could inspire students to explore the wide range of jobs and opportunities in the creative industries locally and nationally.

We're seeking local SMEs and sole traders, and larger organisations. Maybe you left a corporate career to set up a pottery? Or you're a creative company seeking non-creative graduates for other areas of the business? Do you offer conversion qualifications or training in the creative sector? Or have you grown a business and would love to share your top tips? Maybe you have part-time opportunities for students right now?

You could have a stand, deliver a short Q&A, participate in our employer speed dating and/or run demonstrations. All free of charge of course, and we'll keep you fed and watered!

If you'd like to get involved, we'd love to hear from you. Contact Kate at kf123@le.ac.uk or call 07758 219108 (10am-3pm) to discuss. Thank you!
