Welcome by the President and Vice-Chancellor

As President and Vice-Chancellor of the University of Leicester, it is a great pleasure to welcome you all to our degree congregations.

This is a time of celebration for all of us and I very much hope that you find it an enjoyable and memorable occasion. Each congregation is an opportunity to mark your achievements and acts as a bridge between the end of your studies and the beginning of the next stage of your lives; be it further study, a working career, or perhaps a chance to travel and learn more about the world around you.

Across the degree ceremonies, we have graduates who have engaged with the University in different ways. Many will have studied on campus full-time or part-time, while others from all over the world will have completed distance learning programmes and may be visiting the University for the first time. It is a particular pleasure for me to extend a warm welcome to all of you on behalf of everyone at Leicester.

The University of Leicester is a leading international university which is committed to delivering excellence in research and teaching. A degree from this University is a major achievement which I am confident will benefit you throughout your careers.

Leicester graduates now number over 170,000 worldwide and we are very proud of their many achievements. In future years, I hope that you will wish to keep in contact with the University of Leicester by sharing the news about the University around the world; attending alumni events; through further study with us, or by simply returning to campus to visit. You will always find a welcome here, and I wish you every success for the future.

Best wishes,

Professor Paul Boyle CBE FBA FRSE
President and Vice-Chancellor
A University College was established in Leicester as an enduring war memorial for the people of Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland following the First World War. It admitted its first students, nine women, in 1921 and remained a small society of about 100 students until 1945. In the period that followed, the College gained recognition from the University Grants Committee and every aspect of its life began to develop rapidly. On 1 May 1957, the College gained full degree-awarding powers and was granted its Royal Charter, becoming the University of Leicester.

The University has now established itself as a prominent member of the international academic community, with worldwide links in teaching and research. It is internationally-renowned for the discovery of the remains of Richard III and the revolutionary technique of DNA genetic fingerprinting. It houses the biggest university-based space research group in Europe. Leicester also has specialist research centres in Bioengineering, Medical Humanities and Landscape and Climate, with others under development.

The University is committed to offering an extensive programme of undergraduate and postgraduate degree courses which are firmly rooted in a strong research culture. The University continues to invest in new methods of teaching and learning, using the latest communications technology for the benefit of its students.

During the past two decades, the University has experienced a period of significant growth, particularly in respect of postgraduate students. There are around 21,000 students registered on accredited programmes, with almost half of these registered for postgraduate qualifications. The University is committed to widening participation and offers a diverse range of foundation degrees, continuing education courses and professional development programmes. Students from approximately 150 countries are currently studying at the University.

The University works closely with business and industry and, particularly in the fields of Medicine, Biological Sciences, Physical Sciences and Engineering, has established links with company research and development programmes. It has an international reputation for research across a wide range of activities. Academic staff of the University act as advisers to the British and international governments and other organisations.

The quality of the University’s graduates is one of its major assets and those graduating today demonstrate not only their personal achievements, but also the University’s success and high academic standards. They will be well placed to make a contribution to society in the 21st century and to demonstrate the benefits of higher education to the wider community.
Congratulations from the Chancellor

The Right Honourable The Lord Grocott is a Leicester graduate and former academic, television presenter and Labour MP. As MP for the Wrekin, he served as Deputy Shadow Leader of the House, adviser to the Leader of the Opposition and Foreign Affairs Spokesman. He was Parliamentary Private Secretary to Tony Blair from 1994 to 2001. He stepped down from the Commons in 2001 and was made a life peer, and from 2002 to 2008 he served as Government Chief Whip in the House of Lords. He was installed as the University’s Chancellor in January 2013.

This is a memorable occasion, celebrating achievements of which you should be very proud. Your degree from Leicester will stand you in great stead going forward in your careers, whatever path you choose to follow. I greatly enjoyed my time at Leicester where, indeed, I met my wife, and it is a well-known fact that students make life-long friends whilst at university. Today is also a day for celebration with the families and friends who have supported you during your studies. Good luck in the future, many congratulations and enjoy your day.

The Right Honourable The Lord Grocott
The Chancellor

A Message from the Students’ Union

Congratulations to you on this very special day. Graduation is a wonderful way to celebrate the completion of your studies and reflect on your time at the University of Leicester. It’s a day to celebrate with family, friends and loved ones, so really do make the most of it.

The award you receive today will stay with you for the rest of your life, and it may well be the most valuable and beneficial investment you will ever make. Wherever you go, whatever you do, your award from the University of Leicester will be with you, so treasure it. I hope you will look back at your time at the University with fondness. On behalf of everyone at Leicester Students’ Union I want to wish you all the best for the future. Please stay in touch as we’re always happy to hear from you and find out how things are going. The very best of luck for whatever the future may hold.

Rachel Holland
Students’ Union President 2015-2017
A Guide to Academic Dress

The wearing of academic robes can be traced back to medieval Europe, when all students were in clerical orders. Today, the robes worn by graduating students, academics and dignitaries form a distinctive element of the graduation regalia.

Academic dress comprises a gown, a coloured hood and a hat, the shape and colour of all of which differ from institution to institution. Gowns for graduating students at Leicester are traditionally black, except those for recipients of a PhD, which are red. The colour and pattern of hood varies depending on the award received.

Members of the academic procession wear the academic dress associated with the university from which they graduated, creating the rich variety of colours you see at the ceremony.
A Guide to the Ceremony

The degree congregation brings together the University community for the purpose of conferring degrees or awards on our qualified students.

It is a time of celebration and pride, where, together, we mark graduands’ achievements as they come to the end of their journey with us.

This July, students will be graduating from the University across eight ceremonies held over four days.

The ceremony will be live-streamed on the University’s website. Relive the experience after the ceremony; www.le.ac.uk/graduation

The Academic Procession

Each ceremony commences with a procession comprising senior University officers, local dignitaries, members of Council and Senate and recipients of honorary degrees.

The University’s Chancellor is the last to ascend to the stage, preceded by the University Mace Bearer, and once the platform party is in position, the National Anthem is sung and the Chancellor declares the degree congregation open.

Conferment

The main and most important part of the ceremony is the conferring of degrees or awards. Students are invited across the stage one by one to be presented to the Chancellor, or the President and Vice-Chancellor, or a Pro-Vice-Chancellor.

Awards

The award given to each graduating student is based on the level of their study and subject of their course (see the guide to academic dress on page 8).

Honorary Graduates

The ceremonies may also incorporate the conferring of honorary degrees and awards. These are given to leading figures who have made an outstanding contribution in their field.

Teaching Fellows

In recognition of inspiring contributions to teaching and curriculum innovation and development, University Distinguished Teaching Fellowships are also awarded at some degree ceremonies.

Glossary

Council: The Council is the University’s supreme governing body. It has 25 members, a permanent majority of whom are lay members, which means that they are neither staff nor students of the University. Council is chaired by a Pro-Chancellor.

Senate: The Senate is the University’s principal academic board. Senate is concerned with directing and regulating the academic life of the University.

The Chancellor: The office of Chancellor is held by a distinguished individual from academia or public life.

President and Vice-Chancellor: The President and Vice-Chancellor is the chief executive officer of the University.

Provost and Pro-Vice-Chancellors: The Provost and Pro-Vice-Chancellors each have responsibility for major areas of policy; some are also Heads of College. They assist the President and Vice-Chancellor.

Registrar and Chief Operating Officer: The Registrar and Chief Operating Officer is secretary to Council and head of the professional services and is responsible for the administration of the University.
History of the Mace

Ceremonial maces derive from the maces originally used as weapons. From the middle of the 13th century, maces were carried by the Sergeants-at-Arms to protect the monarch, but with the demise of heavy armour, they began to take on a ceremonial role. Cities and organisations throughout the country were increasingly granted the right to have their own ceremonial maces.

For many universities, the ceremonial mace is a feature of official processions, particularly on occasions such as degree ceremonies. At these events, the University Mace represents the internal authority of the officiating officer to confer degrees, the independence of the University from external authority, and the historic and ceremonial significance of graduation itself.

Our Ceremonial Mace and Staves

In November 1957, Gerald Benney, a leading London designer and one of the most outstanding and influential British Goldsmiths of the second half of the 20th century, was engaged to design and produce a University Ceremonial Mace and ten Usher’s Staves. The Mace and Staves were presented as part of a gift to the University from Leicester City by the Lord Mayor and City Council of Leicester on 1 May 1958. The robes for the Chancellor and two Pro-Vice-Chancellors were also presented to the University on this occasion.

The Mace, which at the time was considered to be of modern design, is three feet, eight inches in length and has a rectangular head with rounded edges formed in silver. It was made in sections and then assembled with the head containing the City’s coat of arms on the reverse of a panel bearing the University arms. The Staves are seven feet long, having a rectangular and hollow head containing a fire-gilt book seen from both sides. The head is supported by a forked pillar on a black beech stem with a ferrule of silver.

They were first used on the visit of HM The Queen on 9 May 1958 to open the new Students’ Union Building. Gerald Benney was awarded an Honorary MA by the University on 30 March 1965.
Music at Leicester

Music at the University of Leicester is organised by the University Music Association (MA) which is affiliated to the University’s Students’ Union. Seven groups make up the Association: Band and Gig, Big Band, Chamber Choir, Chorus, Concert Band, Orchestra and Voices.

Music at Leicester is a student-led activity. Currently the Concert Band and Big Band are conducted by students and some items are conducted by students in the programmes of Orchestra and Chorus. In all, some 450 students are involved in music at the University. Each group gives one main concert per term but there are many other performances, including lunchtime Soundbites at Attenborough Arts Centre, events at local residential homes, charity and student balls given by Big Band and a myriad of carol singing events leading up to Christmas. The University Gospel Choir, Voices, competes in University Gospel Choir of the Year.

There are performance opportunities at the University, so any students who come to study here can continue their musical interests. There are currently music scholarships, financed by alumni of the University and by the Philharmonia Orchestra, which are awarded each year on a competitive basis, with tuition provided by visiting teachers. There is also a conducting class, where potential leaders of the various groups are identified and taught individually and in Philharmonia Master Classes.

MAKE THE MOST OF YOU
Welcome to your Alumni Association

“Your relationship for life is just beginning...”

Your graduation means more than just the culmination of your studies. Today, you become an alumnus of the University of Leicester and are welcomed into this exclusive family. We see this as a ‘relationship that lasts a lifetime’ and hope you will feel the same way.

The University of Leicester adds more than 4,000 new alumni to its family every year, and this ever-growing network has now reached over 170,000 members both in the UK and overseas. It’s a great resource that you can call upon at any time and the Development and Alumni Relations Office (DARO) is here to help you make connections and to keep in touch.

We aim to create and sustain connections with alumni and hope that you want to get involved and will want to contribute to your university for years to come. Whether it is through your business expertise, by offering guidance and mentoring, work placements and internships to current students, or by making a philanthropic gift to the University, alumni can have a long-term, positive impact on Leicester and its students.

Alumni Association Membership

There are a wide range of opportunities available for you now that you are a member of the Alumni Association, including exclusive event invitations, careers advice, alumni publications, library access and sports centre membership. You will also be kept up to date on University and alumni news with our annual alumni magazine and social media pages, which are easy to join.

The Development and Alumni Relations Office is here for you. Please tell us about your future successes, we would love to share them with your fellow alumni and if you feel that you have a contribution to make to the University please do get in touch with us.

We’re waiting to hear from you!
Did you know that this exclusive family includes many notable graduates, including politicians, actors, poets, authors, comedians, entrepreneurs and even a Princess?

Meet some of your fellow University of Leicester alumni below:

Selina Nwulu
Modern Language Studies, 2008, Writer and Poet
Selina was named Young Poet Laureate for London in 2015 and has performed all over the UK and Europe, recently publishing her first collection of poems entitled The Secrets I Let Slip.

Will Tudor
English BA, 2008, Actor
Post-graduation, Will has pursued an acting career and has appeared in TV dramas including Channel 4’s Humans and ITV’s Mr Selfridge. Will also portrayed Little Finger’s spy Olyvar in HBO’s hit series Game of Thrones.

Natalie Bennett
Mass Communications MA, 2001, Leader of the Green Party
Natalie is a former editor of The Guardian Weekly and was former leader of The Green Party of England and Wales. For the first time, The Green Party gathered more than one million votes in the 2015 General Election under Natalie’s leadership.
Honorary Awards

The University will confer honorary degrees on the following individuals in recognition of their outstanding achievements.

Michael Attenborough

Michael Attenborough was born in London and educated at Westminster School and the University of Sussex, where he was President of the Drama Society, graduating with a degree in English in 1972. Over a forty-five year period as a theatre director and artistic director he has worked at many of the country’s most prestigious and influential theatres, including the Leeds Playhouse, the Young Vic, the National Theatre, the Royal Court, as Director of the Hampstead Theatre, (during which period the theatre won thirty three major awards), the Royal Shakespeare Company and the Almeida Theatre, where he served as Artistic Director from 2002 to 2013. In 2012, he was presented with the Award for Excellence in International Theatre by the International Theatre Institute. He stepped down from the Almeida to concentrate on a free-lance directing career; this has included productions in Australia and Washington, as well as touring productions in the UK and new works for the Hampstead Theatre and the Chichester Festival Theatre. He is Director Emeritus of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art (RADA), and holds an honorary degree from the University of Sussex, where he is Honorary Professor of English and Drama. He was appointed CBE in the 2013 Birthday Honours for services to theatre.

In July 2009, the University of Leicester awarded Michael Attenborough the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. His relationship with the University now includes his Patronage of the University’s Attenborough Arts Centre, named after his late father Lord Attenborough, who was the original Patron. He is also, with his uncle Sir David Attenborough OM, a Patron of the University’s centenary 2018-21 celebrations.

Charles Bishop

Charles (Chas) Bishop worked in a range of operational and marketing roles in five visitor attractions across the UK, including Madame Tussauds and Alton Towers, before joining the National Space Centre team in 1999 at a time when a disused sewage works in Leicester had been declared the ideal location for the Millennium Landmark project for the East Midlands. The National Space Centre is now the UK’s largest attraction dedicated to space exploration and science. He became Chief Executive of the charity’s operating company in 2001, launching the Visitor Attraction (2001), NSC Creative (2008) and the National Space Academy (2012) as its three strategic business units. He is Chairman of Leicestershire Promotions Ltd and a Trustee of the King Richard III Visitor Centre, and works closely with the UK Space Agency on recruitment and skills development needs for the space sector. He was Chairman of the East Midlands Tourism Council from 2008-11, and has done consultancy work for Government on issues of skills development and communication within the space industry. He is also a Trustee of the Association of Science and Discovery Centres.
Gordon Campbell

Gordon Campbell was born in Surrey but received his school education and attended university in Canada. He obtained his doctorate from the University of York in 1973 before commencing his academic career as Lecturer in English at the University of Aarhus. He then moved to the University of Liverpool, before joining the Department of English at University of Leicester in 1979. He was appointed Reader in Renaissance Literature in 1987, and to a Chair in Renaissance Studies in 1994. He is currently Fellow in Renaissance Studies. He has a particular interest in John Milton, and his publications include editions of Milton's complete poems as well as of selections of poems and individual works. He has also published across a much broader range of cultural history, including art, architecture, Biblical studies, classical antiquity, garden history, legal history, historical theology and the Islamic world. He has made professional visits to more than 70 countries and acted as international relations advisor to the University for 17 years. He also served as the University’s Public Orator from 2004 to 2016. In 2010 he published Bible: the Story of the King James Version 1611–2011 and The Holy Bible: Quatercentenary Edition (ed), and embarked on a worldwide programme of lectures and consultations. At present he acts as an historical consultant for a Museum of the Bible being built in Washington DC. He was made a Fellow of the British Academy in 2001, and is also a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, the Linnaean Society, the Royal Historical Society, the Royal Geographical Society and the Royal Asiatic Society. He is an Honorary Fellow (and past president) of the English Association and a Corresponding Fellow of the Southern African Society for Medieval and Renaissance Studies.

Nicholas Green

Nicholas Green was educated at King Edward VI School, Birmingham, and was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Laws by the University of Leicester in 1980. He pursued postgraduate studies in Canada, obtaining his LLM degree from the University of Toronto in 1981. He began his professional life as a lecturer in law at the University of Southampton, where he completed a PhD in 1985. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1986, and completed his pupillage in 1987. At the Bar he specialised in all aspects of European, competition and regulatory, international, administrative and constitutional law. He appeared before all levels of the domestic English courts and in international courts and tribunals, including many cases heard before the European Court of Justice. In 1998 he was appointed Queen’s Counsel. He was elected Chairman of the Bar Council of England & Wales in 2010, and in 2011 he became joint Head of Chambers at Brick Court Chambers in London. He was knighted upon his appointment as a judge of the High Court of Justice (Queen’s Bench Division) in 2013. Between 2011 and 2016 he was Chairman of the Advocacy Training Council and in 2015 was appointed to sit as a Chairman in the Competition Appeals Tribunal. He served as Vice-Chair of the International Committee of the Judicial College and as a Presiding Judge for the South Eastern Circuit in 2016. He has been Honorary Professor of Law at the University of Leicester since 2005.
Surinder Sharma

Surinder Sharma was born in Nairobi, Kenya, and moved to the UK in 1965; he has lived in Leicester ever since. He attended Gateway Grammar School and studied Law at the University of Kent. He began his professional career with the Commission for Racial Equality in 1978, and has worked in the diversity and inclusion field for over 35 years. His career has taken him to a variety of different organisations, including the BBC, the Littlewoods Organisation and Ford Motor Company (Europe). He was elected as a Councillor at Leicester City Council in 1983 and appointed a Justice of the Peace in the same year; he served as a magistrate until 2006. He served as a Commissioner at the Equal Opportunities Commission from 1999 to 2007, where he chaired the Legal Committee, and was appointed in 2004 as the first National Director for Equality and Human Rights at the Department of Health, serving until 2012. He now chairs the Leicester Race Equality Centre. He was a diversity and inclusion consultant globally and to Novartis AG from 2005 to 2012. He is a Trustee of UNICEF UK and of the National Space Centre, and serves as an Independent Person at Leicestershire County Council and chairs the National Governing Council of the Health and Social Care BME Staff Network. He is a Member of the Ministry of Defence Diversity Advisory Panel, a Member of the Department of Business, Innovation and Skills Equality Advisory Group and member of the Council of Aston University. He was appointed as an Honorary Alderman of the City of Leicester in 2013 and served as High Sheriff of Leicestershire in 2016/17. He holds Honorary Professorships at the University of Wolverhampton and the University of Manchester Business School and is an Honorary Visiting Fellow in the School of Media, Communications and Sociology at the University of Leicester.

H. Eugene Stanley

Eugene Stanley was born in Oklahoma City and obtained a BA degree in Physics from the Wesleyan University in 1962 and his PhD from Harvard University in 1967. He was appointed Assistant Professor of Physics at MIT in 1969 and was promoted to Associate Professor in 1971. He was appointed Hermann von Helmholtz Associate Professor in 1973, in recognition of his inter-departmental teaching and research with the Harvard-MIT Program in Health Sciences and Technology. In 1976, he joined Boston University as Professor of Physics and Associate Professor of Physiology. In 1978 he was promoted to Professor of Physiology and in 1979 to University Professor. His main research focus has been the anomalous behaviour of liquid water in bulk, nano-confined, and biological environments. Since 2007 he has held joint appointments with the Chemistry and Biomedical Engineering Departments at Boston. In 2011, he was appointed William F. Warren Distinguished Professor. He is a member of the US National Academy of Sciences and the Brazilian Academy of Sciences, and is an Honorary Member of the Hungarian Physical Society and an Honorary Professor at Eotvos Lorand University (Budapest). He is also Honorary Professor at the Institute for Advanced Studies, University of Pavia, and at Eotvos Lorand University, Budapest. He is chair of the National Academy of Sciences/Keck Centre Futures Initiative on Complexity, and is an active member of the NAS Committee on Forefronts of Science at the Interface of Physical and Life Sciences, charged with finding ways of fostering useful collaborations between physicists and life scientists.

Since time immemorial, medical practitioners have been subject to Codes of Practice. Only latterly has their conduct been regulated by statute.

Historically, the Hippocratic Oath dating from 400BC is the classical model of an ethical Code of Practice. In some ways it reflected the indentured apprentice system of training doctors.

Whilst the ideals of the Hippocratic Oath are as relevant today as they were in ancient times, the invocations and language are no longer appropriate.

After the Second World War, the World Medical Association, formed in 1947 largely at the behest of the British Medical Association, adopted the Declaration of Geneva as being more appropriate in style to our times. However, the ethos of the Hippocratic Oath is retained almost in its entirety.

The Declaration of Geneva is thus a restatement of an international code of medical ethics which applies both in times of peace and war.

The affirmation of the Declaration of Geneva by our new graduates in Medicine is a public statement of their intent to maintain the historical and traditional standards of ethical conduct and respect of learning.

To be affirmed by all MB., Ch.B Graduates, led by Huw Davies

At the time of being admitted as a member of the medical profession:

I SOLEMNLY PLEDGE to consecrate my life to the service of humanity;

I WILL GIVE to my teachers the respect and gratitude that is their due;

I WILL PRACTICE my profession with conscience and dignity;

THE HEALTH OF MY PATIENT will be my first consideration;

I WILL RESPECT the secrets that are confided in me, even after the patient has died;

I WILL MAINTAIN by all the means in my power, the honour and the noble traditions of the medical profession;

MY COLLEAGUES will be my sisters and brothers;

I WILL NOT PERMIT considerations of age, disease or disability, creed, ethnic origin, gender, nationality, political affiliation, race, sexual orientation, social standing or any other factor to intervene between my duty and my patient;

I WILL MAINTAIN the utmost respect for human life;

I WILL NOT USE my medical knowledge to violate human rights and civil liberties, even under threat;

I MAKE THESE PROMISES solemnly, freely and upon my honour.
The quality of the University’s graduates is one of its major assets and those graduating today reflect not only their personal achievements but also the University’s success and high academic standards.
