This workshop on 16 March 2017 focused on ‘Why Measure for Improvement’ and provided an overview of the importance of measuring for improvement, helping UHL delegates to ask the right questions to get the right data so to be able to interpret what needs to be done.

The workshop was interactive and focused on using real data.

This oversubscribed workshop was delivered by Jay Banerjee, Consultant in Emergency Medicine, Carl Walker, Clinical Audit Manager and Richard Lea, Patient Safety Information Analyst at University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust.

“Personally this is the first time I have really grasped this topic and truth is as a result of the people delivering the information! Superb!”
