The University of Leicester College of Life Sciences PhD studentships integrating precision medicine and clinical excellence

The University of Leicester is a leading UK university committed to international excellence through the creation of world changing research and high quality, inspirational teaching. Leicester is consistently one of the most socially inclusive of the UK’s leading universities with a long-standing commitment to providing fairer and equal access to higher education. We are a leading UK university, currently ranked Top 25 UK University in the Times Higher Education World University Rankings 2019.

The College of Life Sciences at the University of Leicester offers a dynamic, modern environment for postgraduate research, built on decades of highly respected achievement. We are offering four funded full-time PhD studentships, aimed at advancing knowledge and helping to overcome a number of major health challenges faced by society. The studentships are funded by the Leicester Precision Medicine Institute (LPMI) and Leicester Biomedical Research Centre (BRC).

The 4 highly regarded precision medicine projects are offered across a number of the University of Leicester’s internationally recognized areas of research excellence including:

- 2 studentships from a pool of 4 projects in cardiovascular research
- 1 studentship project in diabetes and lifestyle.
- 1 studentship in precision medicine
